"Having for years been troubled with my eyes on account of strain to them subsequent to near-sightedness, I had glasses adapted to my eyes by several of the best specialists of St. Louis, and while their glasses would enable me to see better, they would be tiring to my eyes when wearing them, so that I never could use them with any comfort. After a very careful examination, Dr. Ritter, at the Madison house, prescribed glasses for me which not only improved my sight very greatly but which are also so easy and comfortable to my eyes to enable me to wear them all day with the greatest comfort, and in due appreciation of benefit received at Dr. Ritter's hands, I permit this testimony to be published. Yours, etc., JESSE W. HENRY."
